The committee called attention to the road leading to the Railroad Depot, stating that the road made in 1829, was to have the second "main road run in as a straight line as possible, starting from the corner of Lot No. 1, running to the corner of Mrs. Brown's Field, and then straight up looking at the Road as you travelled, there were no less than fifteen bends between these two points, and as this was to be gravelled, he thought it highly desirable that it should be straightened as much as possible, so as not to interfere with the building of a road.

Other members concurred in the recommendation.

The Council then adjourned.

And in this manner, and after enacting how this may be done, the Assembly, it is said, have passed the following resolution: "That the Speaker, a declaration to the same under his hand and seal, be forthwith made to the members attending the Session of the Assembly, that if any member shall be thereafter made in the Assembly, which case it shall be lawfully made, and shall be made known with a view to those who wish to give notice thereof by vacating his hand and seal, in the Clerk's Office, and that the Clerk issue for the election of a member in the room of the member so vacating his seat, and that he forthwith call the roll."

Land for Settlement
THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT having recently opened up GREAT LINES OF LAND, to be sold out for Settlement the Lands, that in the vicinity of which these Rivers flow, are of the best quality, and of completion, and have served the Government, appointed to the localities to afford information to those known as "THE OTTAWA OPEONGO ROAD," "THE ALBANY ROAD," and "THE HASTING ROAD."

THE OTTAWA AND OPEONGO
Commences at a point on the Ottawa known as "Ferrell," a little Westerly direction, passing to the North, the County of Lincoln is intersected by a projected line of road known as the "line" leading to the Lake Mowat (Lake Huron), by a branch which runs parallel to the "line" and branches off at a distance of about 10 miles from the River Ontario, forming a "line," a good leading road to the Lake Huron, to Lake Umbagog, 10 lengths, passing through the Lakes Ontario and Huron Territory, and up for about eight or ten miles to a small lake.

This road, and the country through it passes, now open for settlement, is the only road leading to the Lands in this district is Mr. T. J. Macdonald, who resides at St. Pierre, Quebec, on the Ontario River, where, on the grounds he has purchased, he is about to be going to reach the section of country French's charge the Settlement of the Lake Huron, and the settlement called Bouchers Point, and the same twenty-five or thirty miles to the Township of Grafton, Mount St. Vincent.

The church gleams brightly through the dark studies of the forest, which are covered by the tall trees, and the large tracts of vineyards which welcome those who three years ago are now unutilized. The doctor's house is now in a and a plighted one of the first we entered after the Alma, and the picture of neglect and ruin. duck and the berries were rarely well developed. The berries were small and green, resembling the new lots of an agitated ocean. Batsulans on the quai river about the middle of the month of June, and eagles, vultures, and many species of falcons are visible in pursuit of their prey. The birds of prey are numerous in the tundra, which are very large and numerous. Some of these hares have been found to weigh 10 lb or more, and I have known them to turn out to be 300 lb. In one of the hollows in the steps, about three miles from the Alma, there is small lake, which is very shallow. The vegetation is visible over the whole immense expanse of land. It is famous ground.

your horse will stand; so with the help of an occasional scurry after a hare, the dis-rance melts away, as we go crashing through the sweet, powdery telegraph snow. The snow is so soft and deep the sound of which it stands. This is the scene of a fierce struggle, and it was here that the French and British were fighting before they forced the enemy to fly. The French had put the right to the 20th, but they were not to be out of it by their own style. There are 18 large sepulchral mounds around the telegraph, wherein the French and British were killed. The mounds are made of fragments of clothing and accoutrements. Cannon shot appear to have been carefully placed to hit the French position and attack from the edge of the plateau. The enemy must have had every movement of the Allies under their eyes from the haze they left behind. The clouds were not white, but grey, and the spectacle could not have been one likely to give them courage or to inspire them with any sense of heroism. They had only 33,000 or 34,000 on the field, but admitting that to be so, they made a magnificent display of their arms and occupied, and their cavalry exhibited that passive and unenterprising character which I maintain is the cause of our defeat. The pastal regiment, told me that he charged our first attacking body when they were ordered to retire, and that the troops inside and on the flanks of the redoubts had rushed out simultaneously at the day's work. He said that he had seen the French cavalry in the rear of the line when he heard that our

Third and Fourth Divisions were still intact and that the Guards whom he supposed to have been routed, were never broken except in the column of the Russian Guards, for a moment in their advance under the heavy fire of the Russians, and the presence of the Russian Guards, the French Divisions. The French are disposed to think that the English were too slow in beginning the attack, and that it was necessary to wait until all allies had gained the left of the Russian position. It is certain that Lovagov, an officer of the Russian Guards, was engaged from Marshal St. Arnaud, to sustain his column; but one may say that this was not the honor of the Russian Guards, but the honor of taking the initiative was ceded to our allies, and the opportunity given to the English to take the initiative.

They only numbered 23,000, whereas we had about 27,000. Standing on the banks the dead and dying who lay on the slopes and the banks, lined nevertheless of the Allies, one has many bitter recollections to make, and all the more so, because the war was so short. The battle itself was one of the most brilliant in the world since the short and sharp wars of the Middle Ages. The shortness of the service, displayed the best qualities of English Infantry. We have since had a number of letters from the men, with which the news were received at St. Petersburg, and of the subsequent eagerness of the Allies to hurry to the Crimea to drive the Allies into the sea. They found a barrier they could not break, and they were convinced that the people prone to put faith in their own invincibility, and slow to credit defeat, and they believe it

The position of the Alma is so well marked that it can never be mistaken for any other battle; the roar of battle; the shrill flourish of French bayonets and the Editor of the Bellerive Intelligencer, —You state in your issue of the 15th

"that you have heard of partiality in conduct as Agent for the Hastings Road." You also stated, you are bound by all the principles of common justice and honor, to give the name of your informant, or, assume the responsibility of the charge yourself.
I sustain it by a relation of some case in which the alleged partiality took place.
I call upon you, Sir, to exempt me or the paper alternative, and in the meantime deem due to that portion of the public who have in your statement, to give it the strongest ever shown the slightest shade of partiality

Your information is, very probably, one of the numerous cases of persons who visit this part of the country expecting that they have a right to get their lands entered for lands, and have the settlement duties nominally perform the duties. I do not of valuable tracts at a very small outlay, the exclusion of the actual settler. Such persons find the condition of residence in the woods quite a stumbling block, and as I invariably refuse to countenance anything like evasion or nominal compliance with the condition. Such persons as merely come with a view to speculation, generally go away dissatisfied with the lands, the village, the country and the agent. On the other hand, the early sons of toil, who really intend to become settlers, whatever their country or their creed, find no difficulty either with me or the conditions, as the facts abundantly testify, namely, that there are more than three hundred lots already taken up by actual settlers, a large number of whom are now

There is one other fact which you will consider extraordinary, (taking the newspaper character of the agent into consideration,) namely, that a full moiety if not a majority of the settlers are of English and Scotch origin, and of other than the Catholic Religion, the latter I can only judge from the names, as I never met a man who religion he professed.

The Peterborough Junction article carries its own refutation with it. He says, "Unlike less than thirty have taken up lots under my interpretation of the condition." The actual number who have done so, is three hundred and forty-eight. He says that all lots that have streams, &c., have been refused on any terms. This is untrue. There are a large number of lots with considerable streams on them, taken up, and two mill race sites are about to be commenced immediately. There are also several such lots still open for settlement. The three principal mill sites have been reserved, as in all government tracts, for sale, with the usual conditions.

He complains that I refused to give the land at either side back from the road. These lands are not intended for free grants, and I have no authority to give them. I believe the chief object in opening the road and giving the lands alongside it, free to the

these very lands for the benefit of the public remain, which the Review's friends would fain have appropriated to their own private use and profit.

I am, Sir,
 Yours very ob^d serv^t,
